GREAT WORK OF SOLONS

Senate and House Both Put in Big Days.

PHARMACY BILL PASSED

Doctors May Now Compound Prescriptions Immediately Upon Their Graduation in Medicine-A Large Number of Bills Offered.

Both the Senate and House held long and important sessions yesterday, the former having met at noon and the latter at 10 o'cock.

The Senate devoted another session almost exclusively to further discussing the child labor bills, but adjourned without reaching a vote.

Judge William Hodges Mann and Senator D. Gardner Tyler made eloquent speeches in favor of the Cabell-Halsey measure, and the Lyle bill was advo-cated by Mr. Whitehead, of Pittsylvania Watkins, of Prince Edward, also spoke strongly for the former bill.

There were a number of bills of more or less importance offered and referred One was by Senator Sale to authorize cities and towns to provide conduits and for this purpose to acquire all wires an cables save telegraph wires in such cities Another was by Mr. Walker to appropriate $60,000 to the State Female Norma at Farmville, and still others by Mr. Revercombe in relation to when necessary to prove negligence by railroads and what portions of road-beds need be fenced by sence of Chairman Boaz, who was indisposed, it was laid aside and the calendar taken up.

There was a lengthy discussion over the bill to fix the powers and duties of the State Hospital Commissioner, but it was finally passed without amendment.

The bill to allow doctors to practice pharmacy immediately upon their graduation in the former profession was passed without amendment, though it was earnestly fought by Messrs. Jennings, Featherston and others. Mr. Jennings offered a joint resolution, which was adopted, appropriating $1,000 to pay certain contingent expenses of the General Assembly, and there was another by Mr. Duke, which was also agreed to, requesting the Governor not to sign the University Alumni bill until March 7th, which will be the anniversary of the opening of the University.

Mr. Owen, of Prince Edward, offered a bill to require commission merchants to make prompt returns for goods sold and there were several other measures of more or less importance, all of which were referred.

The House passed a bill to permit the

The House passed a bill to permit the delivery of liquor in local option districts save in unbroken packages, and another to provide for keeping in repair the roads of Russell county.

The Senate will meet at noon to-day and the House at 10 o'clock.

The Senate met without prayer, Among The Senate met without prayer. Among the visitors to the Senate Chamber was Hon. J. Hoge Tyler. He was the recipient of much attention. The ex-Governor occupied the seat of Senator Hobbs. There was a brief discussion over the Cogbill act to amend the code so as to remove the prohibition upon persons over sixty years of age from serving on Juries. The bill was ordered to its engrossment, after having been amended in some minor particulars. During the debate Mr. Bruce said that in his opinion the best jurors to be had were those who did not wish to serve. A letter has been received here from Congressman John Lamb, in which he says he will do all possible to induce Congress at this session to pass a bill making an appropriation to temporarily relieve the overcrowded condition of the postoffice.

onal privilege and stated that there here a misapprehension somewhere eference to his position on the Anders bill ordered to its engrossment on Thursday. He was unaboldably absent on that day and the letter he sent to the chairman of the Committee on Counties, Cities and Towns had no reference to this particular measure. He had written to Mr. Opic asking that he have the consideration of another bill passed by, Mr. Cogbill said he realized the fact on Wednesday that his bill was beaten and he had not intended to oppose further the Anderson act.

CHILD LABOR BULL.

CHILD LABOR BILL. The Child Labor bills came up as the special order. Mr. Mann offered an amendment with a view to making the proposed Cabell act more effective. This was accepted by Mr. Halsey, who stated that the amendment was perfectly acceptable to Mr. Cabell, of the House, the patron of the bill. Mr. Mann then dived into a discussion of the whole matter. He advocated the passage of the Cabell-Halsey bill, in that frank sort of way that he has of discussing public questions. Judge Mann said that there were few factories in the district he represented. Therefore, he would speak for the children and for the Commonwealth. If parents would permit their children to be cooped up in factories for eight or ten hours a day, he thought it was time for the Commonwealth to step in and put proposed Cabell act more effective. This the Commonwealth to step in and put its strong, firm foot down upon this the Commonwealth to step in and put its strong, firm foot down upon this sert of thing.

Spurred on by questions, fired thick and fast at him, the Notioway Senator rose to heights of eloquence in his appeal to the Senators to pass this act and to save the boys and the girls and to make them men and women that would mensure up to the full statute of manhood and womanhood. The judge contended that to preserve the high standard of Virginia, male or female, it was necessary to begin aright and by that he meant the taking care of the children.

Mr. Mann brought out foreibly the fact that a child needs the sunshine of heaven in order to develop its physical as well as intellectual quilities. Asked if it were not better for a child to work in a factory than to stand upon the street corners, Judge Mann unhesitatingly unswered with a great big "no." He did not approve of their standing on street corners, but he thought this the leaser of the two cytle.

Judge Mann talked so carnestly, so appealingly and so frankly that every Senator stopped reading newspapers or writing letters while he was talking. The Judge was cheered when he closed his remarks.

Cabell bill did not go far enough. Mr. Tyler said he would be the last man on earth to do anything to hurt the manufacturing industries of the State, and he was pleased to note the fact that the manufacturers, as a rule, had shown a proper and a patriotic spirit in this matter.

Mr. Tyler warned the Senators that if they really wished to accomplish that which has sought to be accomplished, the thing to do was to pass the Cabell bill. He said the evil it was proposed to correct might not be great now, but it was time to put a barrier in the way of the growth of this evil. In other words it would be better now to provent a condition that might soon confront us if the ounce of prevention, which is always better than a pound of cure, is not applied, and applied at once.

MR. ANDERSON FAVORS IT.

Mr. Anderson followed Mr. Tyler and briefly advocated the passage of the Cabell bill.

bell bill.

Mr. Whitehead, in a short address, advocated the passage of the Lyle bill. He agreed with all the lofty sentiments expressed in regard to child labor—but he thought the picture was altogether overdrawn. He believed that it was a theory and not a condition confronting us. In other words, he did not think the evil pointed out existed, or that there were such dangers ahead of us as were feared by some.

such dangers ahead of us as were feared by some.

Mr. Whitehead thought a very small proportion of the labor people had asked for the passage of the bill. Even if all had come and requested the passage of the act, he did not think this ought to be considered any more than a request or a petition from any other source. The Sentors were here to represent every interest. If the representatives of trusts were to come to the Legislature and ask the passage of some bill there would go up a howl. He was willing to give the labor unions all the consideration proper, but it should be remembered that there were other interests to be considered and parents going into courts and placing themselves upon record as being unable to support their children. He said that there were many poor people who still had pride and would dig in the hillisides until physically worn out before they would make their family affairs public.

Mr. Whitehead thought this act inter-fered too much with family matters. He believed in the old Jeffersonian principle that there should be just as few laws passed as were actually needed for the proper government of the people.

MR. WATKINS' VIEWS.
Mr. Watkins made one of those oldfashioned arguments of his in advocating

MR. SALFS BILL.

Mr. Sale offered a bill to authorize the councils of any city or town to provide condults, either by having the same constructed themselves, or by acquiring the same by purchase, lease, or condemnation, and to require telephone, telegraph, fire alarm, electric light, and all other wires and cables except trolley wires, or such of them as the councils may determine, to be placed in the same, and to prescribe regulations and rentals for the use thereof, and to authorize the appointment of an electrical commission.

It is as follows: It is as follows:

1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia, That the councils of any city or town be, and they are hereby, authorized and empowered to provide a system or systems of conduits, under the streets, lanes, alleys, and other places, or any part or parts thereof, in such city or town, for the use of telephone, telegraph, fire alarm, electric light, and all other clectric wires and cables except trolley wires, or such of them as the councils may determine, either by having the same constructed (hemselves, or by acquiring the same by purchase, lease, or condemnation. bly of Virginia. A number of bills were reported from the Senate and from House Committees and read a first time,

Mr. Jennings, of Lynchburg, offered a resolution appropriating $1,000 for certain contingent expenses of the General Assembly and it was agreed to.

Mr. Duke offered one directing the keeper of the rolls of the House not to prosent the university alumn bill to the Governor for his signature until March 7th, which will be the anniversary of the opening of the university.

It was agreed to, and the following bills were offered and referred:

By Mr. Caton: To facilitate the payment of pensions under the recent act passed on the subject.

By same: To provide for a commission to promote the uniformity of legislation in the United States.

By smi: For the relief of J. P. Swords, By Mr. Owen: To require commission merchants to make prompt returns to shippers of produce.

By Mr. Early and others: Petitions favoring the Mann bill.

Among the interesting bills reported and given their first reading were these,

To appropriate $15,000 to the School for the Deaf and Bilnd at Staunton.

To appropriate $15,000 to the Western State Hespital.

To provide for placing a statue of General R. E. Lee in the Statuary Hall at Washington.

roal R. E. Lee in the Statuary Hall at Washington.

TAX BILL TAKEN UP.

When the general tax bill came up at a special order, Mr. Gent secured the adoption of an amendment, subjecting private telephone lines to taxation, where they charge the public for messages.

The tax bill was laid aside temporarily in the absence of Chairman Boaz, and House bill No. 44, relating to the duties of State hospital commission was taken up. The question came up on Mr. Cardwell's motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was ordered to its engrossment. Mr. Cardwell advocated his motion so he might offer some amendments, and it was carnestly opposed by Mr. Lassiter, of Petersburg, on behalf of the Asylums and Prisons Committee. Mr. Cardwell desired to give the commissioner agrees movers. He declared that the bill the Asylums and Prisons Committee. Mr. Cardwell desired to give the commissioner larger powers. He declared that the bill made the officer purely a figurehead and that he desired him to be something or to reduce his salary to $300 or $400.

Mr. Lassiter spoke earnestly and at some length against the motion to reconsider. He contended that the powers of the State Board should not be limited by enlarging those of the commissioner, as the former has faithfully performed their duties. By a vote of 39 to 30 the House refused to reconsider, and the bill was passed.

AS TO PENITENTIARY

AS TO PENITENTIARY.

Mr. Edwards, of West Point, offered a bill, which was referred, conforming the statutes to the new Constitution in the matter of appointment of Board of Directors and surgeon of the penitentlary.

During the roll-call on the bill it repeal the charter of the town of Bowling Green, the Monumental Church kindergarten was brought in and marched around through the hall, directly in front of the speaker's stand. Each of the twenty-five or thirty bright little tots carried diminutive United States flags, and the members of the House appeared greatly interested in the diversion.

When Senate bill No. 110, relating to the provisions allowing any medical doctor to practice pharmacy. The present laws permits them to do so after five years from the date of their graduation, and the proposed bill gives the young doctors the privilege when they begin practice. Mr. Cardwell spoke warmly in favor of his amendment and was loudly cheered by the House. He said that his amendment was in the interest of a great profession, that of pharmacy, and that it was as much entitled to the protection of the Legislature as the medical profession. He said the doctors were here asking that they be protected from all kinds of "heelers," and that now the pharmacists were entitled to protection from the cists were entitled to protection from the

Mr. Whitehead spoke with much earnestness for the amendment, and declared that the bill was unfair to the pharma-cists of the State.

Mr. Cardwell accepted an amendment providing that physicians might com-pound prescriptions provided he should not do so within ten miles of a regular frug store.

Mr. Whitehead offered an amendment to allow physicians to practice law. This was, of course, offered in jest, and Mr. Featherstone spoke for the Cardwell amendment. He made a strong speech and Mr. Southall followed in favor of the bill. He made a very able argument, and several times he and Mr. Whitehead became involved in colloquys which greatly amused the House.

A letter was read from Dr. A. S. Prid-

Medical Examiners and the pending question was ordered on motion of Mr. Lowry. Mr. Featherston's amendment so modified as to provide that no physician shall compound prescriptions within five miles of a drug store, was rejected—ayes, 20; noos, 40—and that of Mr. Cardwell was taken up. The effect of this was to allow no physician to compound drugs save for his own medical practice, and the member from Hanover again spoke for its adoption. Mr. Hunley advocated the passage of the bill without amendment. The previous question was ordered on motion of Mr. Stearnes, and the amendment was rejected—ayes, 13; noes, 45—and the bill was passed without amendment—ayes, 40; noes, 23. Mr. Duke moved to make the Barksdale Fure Election bill a special order for Monday next, and Mr. Cumming opposed on the ground that Chairman Kelley would be absent. Mr. Duke gave notice that he would fight any effort to further postponing the consideration of the bill, and the House, at 1:60 P. Mr. adjourned until 10 o'clock today.
